文章

议论文

(2025 年 6 月) Suppose your university is organizing a forum on the development of students' cross-cultural communication abilities. You are now to write an essay to express your view. You will have 30 minutes to write the essay. You should write at least 120 words but no more than 180 words.

第一段

With the acceleration of globalization, an increasing number of universities have come to realize the necessity of developing students' cross-cultural communication abilities. Therefore, it is my belief that we should give priority to cultivating this essential skill.

第二段 (分析原因)

Developing cross-cultural communication abilities can bring multiple benefits.(有无总述句都可以) For one thing, it can broaden the horizons of youngsters. When communicating with people from different cultural backgrounds, students are exposed to a rich variety of customs and viewpoints, which not only enriches their understanding of the world but also encourages them to appreciate the diversity that exists across different societies. For another, if students have excellent cross-cultural communication abilities, they will be better equipped to handle international cooperation tasks. On the contrary, if they fail to have such ability, they will miss a lot of opportunities in their future careers.

第三段

By and large, cross-cultural communication abilities play a crucial role in students' personal growth and career development. As college students, we should strive to learn foreign languages and actively participate in international activities to improve our communication abilities.

(2025 年 12 月) Suppose the Student Union of your university is collecting opinions on improving its work for the coming year. You are now to write a response by suggesting how it can better enrich student life.

第一段

It is beyond dispute that enriching campus life is essential to college students' all-round development. Therefore, to make more students embrace the vibrancy of campus life, I would like to put forward several practical and feasible suggestions.

第二段（具体措施，不再是分析原因了）

First of all, increase support for campus interest clubs in order to attract more students to join them. In addition, practical activities such as visiting enterprises and holding job-hunting sharing sessions enable students to get in touch with society in advance, which can enhance students' practical and innovative abilities. In the end, we should not neglect cultural and sports activities either. We can organize more activities like art exhibitions and fun sports events, which are not only beneficial to physical and mental health but also offer university students opportunities to relax.

第三段

On the whole, it is quite essential to have more colorful activities to enrich our campus life. Only by putting these suggestions into practice will our campus life become more diverse and vibrant.

议论文结构总结

第一段引出主题的句子

(1) Recently the issue /problem of...has been in the limelight (处于关注的中心)/ brought into focus/ brought to public concern.

(2) Recently with the development /advance/progress of science and technology, the phenomenon of...has aroused wide concern.

(3) Nowadays, it is undeniable that... has almost become the biggest concern of the present-day world.

(4) What is your idea as to...? There exist varying/ a variety of points concerning it.

(5) With respect to/ With regard to/ When it comes to..., people's arguments vary from person to person./ attitudes differ from person to person./there are different opinions among people.

第一段表示个人观点的表达

In my opinion

As far as I am concerned

For my part/From my perspective

It is my perspective that...

第二段如果分析原因,推荐总起句(本句可有可无)

1.The majority of people would agree that sth. has its deep roots.

2.It is superficially a simple phenomenon, but when subjected to analysis, it has its fundamental reasons.

3.There exist at least two reasons, from my perspective, for the present phenomenon.

4. As we know, recognizing a problem is the first step in finding a solution.

5.There exist numerous elements responsible for the issue.

6.The reason for this is not far to seek.

7.There are abundant arguments for my standpoint.

如果第二段写措施,推荐总起句(可有可无)

1.There are several measures that can be taken to deal with the issue.

2.To solve this problem, a comprehensive strategy is required.

3.Effective solutions to the issue can be found in the following aspects.

4.Here are some things that could be done to make things better.

5.When faced with this challenge, it is essential to explore a range of potential solutions.

思考:第二段无话可说怎么办?

1. 举例论证

为什么要培养孩子迎接挑战的能力?

Although numerous cases are available for this argument, the following one about my teacher Liu is the most suitable. She was born in a poor family with three siblings. Furthermore, she, years later, failed to realize her dream to attend an esteemed university even though she studied hard during her senior high school years. In such situations, she has never given herself up, being convinced that “From the gutter, we can still look up at stars.” And what she believes is that poverty is never scary; what we should be afraid of is that our minds are needy. It is through years of endeavors that her dream came true. So the story vividly tells us that it is necessary that students should be encouraged to develop the ability to meet challenges.

为什么说微笑是拉近人与人距离最好的手段？

The following story about my teacher, Dayan, is the most suitable. Whenever I see her, she always wears a smile on her face even though it might be a doomsday. As a consequence, almost every one of us enjoys chatting with her and she is very popular with students. So the story vividly tells us that it is necessary to keep an active attitude towards life. Besides, it is beyond dispute that you will definitely have a greater chance of achieving success if you always wear a smile on your face.

为什么大学图书馆应该对外开放？

The following story about my university is quite typical. It is a college that might be unknown to almost all people in China. However, our president is so open-minded that he makes a decision to allow anyone with some qualifications to borrow books from our library. As a consequence, more citizens enter the campus and better understand the history of my college. So the case tells us that it might be a good idea to open libraries to the public. Besides, one fact often overlooked is that the openness of libraries promotes resource sharing, which also avoids the waste of academic resources in universities.

2. 正反论证

Why should students be encouraged to develop effective communication skills?

If university students can develop effective communication skills, they will make more friends. In addition, the more friends they have, the happier their life on campus will be. On the contrary, if they fail to communicate with their classmates positively, they might become isolated, feeling lonely and depressed.

为什么要注重身体健康?

If teenagers and youngsters can take some time to exercise in their spare time, they will become healthy. With good health, they can make great contributions to the development of Chinese economy. By contrast, if the young and the old fail to pay attention to the importance of fitness, they might have many physical and mental problems such as obesity as well as mental disorders.

第三段 总结措施段

第一句 总结句:标志总结的逻辑关系词+个人观点

1. on the whole=all in all =overall=in conclusion / summary / general=generally (speaking) = as a whole = mainly = substantially = to sum up = to conclude=come to the conclusion 总的来说

2. in short/brief=in a word 简而言之

把文章中心再说一遍

1.Under no circumstances can we ignore the importance / severity of sth.

2.What could be done to promote sth / to ban sth?

3.So crucial / grave is sth that enough attention should be paid to the issue recently.

第二句(和第三句) 措施:我们/政府/家长/学校

1. Students, from their early age, could be educated to cultivate the awareness that methods of learning are more important than learning itself.

2. Authorities could broadcast the importance of community responsibility in public.

3. However busy we are, we must remember exercising is quite essential to keep fit.

结尾句(可有可无)

1.Only by taking certain steps can people make full use of _____.

2. So, shouldn't human beings pay much attention to the issue of _____.

3.So, under no account could people divert attention from sth.

4.The more actively people face the problem, the more happily they will lead their life.

5.It is high time that the subject about _____ became a focus among youngsters.

练习(同学们自行阅读,一定要读!)

(2024 年 12 月) Directions: Suppose the university newspaper is inviting submissions from the students for its coming edition on how to enrich students' knowledge of traditional Chinese culture. You are now to write an essay for submission. You will have 30 minutes to write the essay. You should write at least 120 words but no more than 180 words.

In modern times, the issue about how to enrich students' knowledge of traditional Chinese culture has been brought into the limelight. From my perspective, college students should spend some time understanding traditional Chinese culture, enhancing our cultural confidence.

First of all, college students can attend relevant lectures because these lectures given by renowned scholars can offer in-depth insights into ancient Chinese literature and thoughts, which can help us further reflect on ancient Chinese culture. Additionally, reading classic works such as Affairs in the Ming Dynasty and Journey to the West can also help us systematically learn and understand the charm of our ancient cultural heritage. In the end, active participation in traditional cultural practices including poetry recitations and traditional festival activities is also essential, which helps us combine what we have learned with reality and further improve our cultural literacy and comprehensive ability.

In a word, there exist diverse ways for the teenagers and youngsters to know the beauty of Chinese culture. It is high time for college students to actively inherit and spread the excellent traditional Chinese culture and share its attraction with the world.

书信作文

(2022 年 6 月) Directions: Suppose you are going to write a proposal to your school library for improving its service. You are to write about its current problems and possible solutions to these problems.

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am a junior from the Department of Fine Arts in this university. I'm writing to make a proposal for improving the service of our library.

第一段

In the first place, the librarians, especially Ms Liu and Mr Zhang, are always impatient as well as uncourteous whenever students ask them for help. What's more, it is beyond dispute that the books available in the library are so old that they fail to catch up with the latest development of related disciplines. In the end, more English magazines and newspapers such as Nature, The New York Times should be added, which could broaden the horizons of students on campus.

At last, thank you for your consideration of my suggestions. I'm looking forward to your reply.

Yours sincerely,

Li Ming

报告、新闻稿

For this part, you are allowed 30 minutes to write a news report to your school newspaper on a volunteer activity organized by your Student Union to help elderly people in the neighborhood. You should write at least 120 words but no more than 180 words.

On June 18, Sunday, a volunteer activity in the local Nursing House was organized by the Student Union, which proved to be a success. (活动内容+时间+地点)

The activity was aimed at encouraging students to visit the elderly at the Nursing House and help elderly people deal with the troubles in their life. Many students volunteered to participate in this good deed and were engaged in helping the elderly out by making their meals, washing their clothes and chatting with them. When asked about those volunteers' feelings about such an experience, all of them responded with a smile, saying "What a wonderful experience. I really appreciate this activity because it makes me learn to care about those who are in need.”

To sum up, the activity was quite successful not only for the elderly but also for those students involved.

首段：大体交代新闻事件，主要包含新闻事件发生的时间、地点、所涉及的人物及缘由等

(1) Last Sunday witnessed an extraordinary cross-country running race, which nearly drew the attention of every student and teacher of our school.

(2) Last week witnessed the first Culture Festival themed “the Beauty of Traditional Chinese Culture” held by our school.

中段：详细叙述调查或活动的经过

(1) As scheduled, the activity started at 8 o'clock on Saturday morning and it lasted for three hours.

(2) After the heated competition, the student who gave a superb performance was presented an award by our head teacher.

(3) Participants were required to prepare an English classic poem to recite within 5 minutes.

尾段：对事件的评价、自己的感悟或事件的意义

(1) The activity was indeed extremely successful, and the students involved realized that even small acts could make a difference to the earth.

(2) The activity was highly spoken of because not only did it enrich our school life but also it developed our love for the English language.

(2025 年 6 月) Passage Two

With the rise of pop music, jazz, and electronic music, both opera and classical music started to fade away from the public eye. Some people are beginning to wonder whether opera and classical music are still relevant to the modern world of music. Granted, you will not typically see today's teenagers lending their ears to Bach anytime soon, but there are some major indicators that both opera and classical music are now still quite alive.

The most major indicator of classical music's importance in society today is the fact that much of the popular music that is currently being produced uses similar beats, harmonies, and melodies(旋律) as those that were used in some of classical music's best works. Even so, it can be difficult for those who do not study music theory to see this as an indicator, since it is subtle and just shows the impact symphonic(交响乐的) orchestras have had on society's taste in music.

A better example for the relevance of opera and classical music can be seen in the invention of the rock opera. Opera, in its simplest definition, is telling a story using music as its form. The art of telling a story using music has not faded in the least bit. In fact, sometimes actual orchestras are used for major parts of the opera itself. Some of the world's greatest hits have been parts of rock operas.

Fans of classical music can also tell you that there are few types of music that are more expressive. So, it should come as no surprise to anyone that classical music pieces are still used as background music in modern movies. Symphonic orchestra compositions have also been created solely for the purpose of being included in major motion pictures. These are often very well received amongst mainstream music fans.

(last) Classical music and opera are the very foundation of what our modern music is based upon. Considering the huge impact they have had on our current society, it is without doubt that we can expect them to continue to remain important for centuries to come.

51. What does the author think of classical music and opera in today's world?

- A) They still make their presence felt.
- B) They have given way to electronic music.
- C) They will not fade away from the public eye.
- D) They are no longer relevant to teenagers' lives.

52. What do we learn about much of the popular music currently produced?

- A) It can be difficult for many classical music fans to appreciate.
- B) It can be seen as an indicator of refinement on classical music.
- C) It caters to society's taste in music in a more subtle way than classical music.
- D) It contains elements similar to those in some masterpieces of classical music.

53. Why does the author mention the invention of the rock opera?

- A) To illustrate how to tell a story using music.
- B) To present the simplest definition of opera.
- C) To show the relevance of opera and classical music.
- D) To justify the necessity of using orchestras in opera.

54. Why are classical music pieces still used as background music in modern movies?

- A) There are few types of music for movie producers to choose from.
- B) They are considered to be the most expressive type of music.
- C) They are well received by movie fans from all over the world.
- D) They are essential for movies to become the world's greatest hits.

55. What do we learn about our modern music?

- A) It could not have come into being without classical music and opera as its foundation.
- B) It cannot outcompete classical music and opera in its impact on our current society.
- C) It will not enjoy as much popularity as classical music and opera among music fans.
- D) It might not be able to rival classical music and opera in importance for centuries to come.

(2025 年 12 月第一套) Passage One

Junk food is now a staple of many Americans' diets. Advertising campaigns from the snack food companies, often featuring sports stars, send the message that we can neutralize any negative effects of consuming their products simply by getting more physical exercise. But recent studies show a lack of exercise is not to blame for rising obesity rates. Bad diets are.

Interventions(干预) to help reduce junk food consumption are especially important for children and teenagers. Prevention is better than cure because obesity is so difficult to treat. Unfortunately, while health education has shown some success among young children, teens have been harder to reach.

Now a large-scale study has tried an innovative approach to change teenagers' attitudes towards healthy eating, and the results are promising. The researchers argued that previous interventions have probably been unsuccessful because of a major flaw: they focused on a future, healthier you and assumed that this would be enough motivation for teenagers. In contrast, the new intervention cleverly exploits teenagers' instinct for rebelliousness and autonomy, and the value they place on social justice.

To do this, researchers had students read an article on the food industry. It revealed a secret about the manipulative and deceptive strategies used to make junk food more addictive and characterize the products as healthy. The article also explained how advertising campaigns specifically target very young and poor people, causing harm for these vulnerable groups. Afterwards, the participants read a fictional survey of teens who wanted to “fight back against the companies by buying and eating less processed food”.

After the intervention, participants associated healthy eating with autonomy and social justice. The teenagers also rated healthy eating as being more appealing. Importantly, there were also some promising effects of the new intervention on actual behavior. A day later the students were offered a choice of snacks and drinks in a seemingly unrelated context. The teens chose healthy snacks and drinks (such as fruit or water) more often over unhealthy options (like biscuits and soda). Apparently associating a healthy diet with teenagers’ own values seems to be a promising avenue to prevent obesity.

46. What do we learn about advertising campaigns from the snack food companies?

- A) They convey the idea that their products are ok if consumers exercise more.
- B) They send the message that bad diets are responsible for Americans’ obesity.
- C) They usually feature sports stars to emphasize the benefits of their snack foods.
- D) They claim that lack of exercise is to blame for the increasing obesity rates.

47. What does the passage say about health education?

- A) It has shed light on teens’ instinct for rebellion and autonomy.
- B) It has placed much more emphasis on cure than on prevention.
- C) It has contributed little to the campaigns against obesity.
- D) It has largely failed to turn teens away from junk food.

48. What is a major flaw in previous interventions to help reduce junk food consumption?

- A) They motivated teens to stay away from junk food only temporarily.
- B) They focused on the benefits young people would reap in the future.
- C) They were based on the assumption that motivation was the only key.
- D) They were incapable of appealing to teens' instinct for rebelliousness.

49. In what way is the new intervention innovative?

- A) It emphasizes people's sense of social responsibility.
- B) It cleverly exploits teenagers' personal weaknesses.
- C) It takes advantage of teenagers' natural inclination.
- D) It promises immediate rather than future benefits.

50. What conclusion can be drawn from the new research?

A) A totally different approach could be adopted to combat advertising campaigns for snack food.

B) An effective intervention has to be found to persuade teenagers to switch to a healthier lifestyle.

C) Obesity can be hopefully prevented by building links between teenagers' values and healthy eating.

D) An innovative way to beat obesity is to expose food companies' manipulative and deceptive practices.

(2025 年 12 月)第一套 Looking for a job after 45

36. Hiring managers believe unemployed workers over 45 lack good skills and are less adaptable.

D) A substantial part of this, they report, is “widespread ageism” on the part of hiring managers. Although such managers admit that post-45 hires turn out on average to be just as good as or better than younger workers, they still don’t want to hire them. “Hiring managers have a strong perception bias against 45+ job candidates—they believe that members of this age group have poor skills and low adaptability,” Generation’s analysts report.

37. Switching to a new career is difficult and getting reemployed after a layoff is even tougher.

A) Ageism and long-term unemployment are most damaging for those in the second half of their careers. Changing careers is hard. Getting back into work after you’ve been laid off is even harder. Those over 45 make up the bulk of the long-term unemployed, in America and elsewhere. Hiring managers admit they are reluctant to hire those over 40 or 45, arguing they probably won’t be a good “fit,” their experience won’t be relevant to the workplace, and they’ll be unable or unwilling to learn new skills.

38. People from poor neighborhoods tend to have the least interest in retraining.

J) If they think we’re too old to learn new skills after we’re 45, just learning some new skills may have an effect on its own. There’s a downside to this. The people least interested in retraining are more likely to come from historically disadvantaged communities, more likely to have low incomes, and are more likely to have the least schooling after getting their high-school diploma or earlier. On average, post-45 job switchers with higher incomes participate in 2.5 training programs each. Those with lower incomes: 0.9 programs on average.

39. Hiring managers who are not yet 45 years old seem unwilling to hire people their senior.

F) Their biggest fears about hiring those over 45? Managers said they worry that older hires will be reluctant to try new technologies, and will be unable to learn new skills. Besides, the majority of hiring managers are under 45—and seem reluctant to hire people older than themselves.

40. Some analysts find age 45 + jobless workers are most likely to be unemployed for more than a year.

C) “Older midcareer workers... make up the bulk of the long-term unemployed in many countries,” Generation’s analysts write in their report. Those over 45 comprise over 40% of the long-term unemployed, for example. And if you’re out of work past the age of 45, there’s nearly a two in three chance you’ll be out of work for over a year, they find. “Midcareer individuals are finding it harder to get jobs,” they write.

41. People who had succeeded in career change after 45 told a nonprofit organization they owed a great deal to the education and training they had received.

I).....What training are we talking about? Obviously it depends on the job. And, yes, managers are most likely to be impressed by industry qualifications you get in school. These things cost money, and time. But these aren’t the only things helpful. Those who had successfully changed careers after 45 told Generation that education and training had been a big help—and that included in-person, on-the-job training, “informal learning,” and online courses—with or without certification.

42. Older workers who actively pursue more education and training have a good chance of being hired.

G) But here's the good news. Older workers who've actively engaged in more education and training relevant to their jobs turn this pretty much on its head. Three-quarters of hiring managers said they'd be more likely to hire an over-45 who had relevant education, training or credentials (文凭). Among those over 45 who'd successfully switched careers, 74% said training helped them get their new job.

43. A new study finds that more education and training helps midcareer individuals find a new job.

B) But the one thing that can really make a difference? More education and training. These are the results from a new study by Generation, a nonprofit founded by former McKinsey consultants. They've just published a global survey on midcareer employment, based on surveys of over 5,000 workers and managers in seven countries.

44. Owing to the internet, it is now more convenient than ever to receive training in new skills.

L) We can rail against "ageism" all we like. It gets us nowhere. And it's easy to forget that employers, like everyone else, are under time pressure and are just trying to solve problems. Any and all "training," including inexpensive and informal training, is going to help resolve their worries about hiring someone over 45. And it has never been easier or cheaper to gain instruction in new skills, thanks to the internet. Online schools like Udemy and Lynda.com offer sweet deals at sign-up. And courses on YouTube are free.

45. People over 45 stimulated by training suffer shorter periods of unemployment, get more job offers and have greater satisfaction in them.

H) "Midcareer switchers overwhelmingly say that training enabled them to shift to a new career path," the analysts write. And when they asked over-45 candidates about their attitudes, they found that "those who are excited by training are unemployed for less time, receive more job offers, and are more satisfied by the job offers they receive."

People tend to want as many choices as possible. They believe this will maximize their 26 of making the best decision. But research shows that, when it comes to actually making a 27 from all of these choices, people can become 28 and avoid making a decision altogether. Even worse, when people finally do decide, they are generally less satisfied with their decision and feel more regretful over whatever choice they made.

Why does this happen? Research shows that when people choose from many options, they 29 more in the decision, but feel less confident in their ability to decide well. In other words, when we are 30 with more choices, making the “right” or “correct” decision begins to feel more 31 and, at the same time, more difficult to do. This may contribute to the deep fear that we will make the wrong decision.

How can we solve this problem? I believe this fear could be tempered by putting decisions into perspective. It might help to remember that many of the choices you make, such as what to have for lunch, will not 32 much in the future and that, even more important choices, like accepting a new job, can 33 be changed. It could also help to 34 these situations with clear guidelines and ideas of what you want from the 35 of options, which can narrow the possible choices, and also make you more confident about your ability to make the right decision.
